Event Overview

The annual Silicon Valley Global Awards event recognizes and celebrates the achievements of Irish and Irish-American technology leaders working at the highest levels of the industry and making a significant impact in their field. A total of fifty executives are selected and honored each year. The event generates rich networking opportunities, showcases experts and innovators from the ITLG community advancing technology and hosts keynotes given by industry leaders such as last year's Aaron Levie, CEO of Box, Ann Kelleher, Vice President of Intel, ITLG Chairman and former CEO of Intel, Craig Barrett, and Irish Government Minister for Business, Education and Innovation Heather Humphries.

About ITLG

The ITLG is a global Irish network of technology leaders dedicated to fostering innovation, entrepreneurship and economic success. ITLG's charter includes supporting the growth and development of Irish technology companies seeking to leverage both the US marketplace and the US technology investment community; supporting US technology companies based in Ireland to ensure that Ireland continues to be a strategic area of R&D investment and opportunity; advancing innovation and entrepreneurship through mentorship, university partnerships and government engagement; and expanding the global Irish diaspora network to support entrepreneurial success and raise the profile of brand Ireland. The key focus areas of ITLG are Entrepreneurship, Women in Leadership, Education, and Young Innovators.
